Speech Language Pathologist Assistant (Medical Leave – 10 months contract)

Employment Type

Full-time

Description

Are you a Speech Language Pathologist who is seeking a meaningful opportunity in working alongside children to prevent or reduce the impact of communication delays or disabilities they are experiencing? You will have the opportunity to work directly hands-on with a caseload of up to 25 children and be actively involved in the growth journeys of the children, families, and teams that we work with.

Date posted

July 18, 2024

Valid through

18.08.2024

Responsibilities

Important work you will do at e4c

- Engage in an ongoing process of assessment, diagnosis, and intervention to a caseload of 25 children with communication and other developmental delays.
- Provide a combination of direct (e.g., one-on-one, group) and indirect (e.g., classroom consultation, parent teaching) therapy to facilitate communication, social, and emotional development.
- Assess and report on the communication skills of preschool children from households with low incomes, including children who are bilingual or English Language Learners.
- Contribute to the development and review of IPPs for each child who receives Program Unit Funding.
- Mentor and educate team members and parents about general communication development and intervention strategies, and the specific needs of their children. Opportunities will be both formal (e.g., presentations) and informal (e.g., team meetings).
- Work collaboratively with community partnerships and resources such as CASA, Alberta Health Services and Occupational Therapy.
- Partner with team members to complete appropriate referrals to external agencies (e.g., Alberta Health Services Audiology, Glenrose Rehabilitation Hospital Voice Clinic).

Qualifications

What you bring to the team

- You possess a Masters' Degree in Speech and Language Pathology.
- You are registered with ACSLPA.
- You enjoy working with preschool children aged 2.5 to 5 years.
- You can connect with socially, economically, and culturally diverse children and their families.
- You are comfortable working as part of a multi-disciplinary team.

Background Process & Requirements
